

Read the incredible life story of Anna Hazare, how a little boy in poverty selling flowers on Dadar station became the leader of nation

These past few months seem to have turned into the season of revolutions. Political revolution in Tunisia, Syria, Egypt and other Middle East countries; where everyone knew what was wrong with their current political climate but no-one did anything until the masses decided to do something. Images of police in riot-gear, violence on the street and bloodied men and women fighting for democracy have become a staple in the newspapers.

For those of you who may not know, there is a quiet revolution going on in India as well. And as with the struggle for freedom, this revolution is taking place in a very non-violent way. Led by an Army veteran turned social worker and a true Gandhian, Anna Hazare; he is joined at the leadership by several well known and respected personalities including Kiran Bedi, the fearless IPS lady cop, Yogi guru Ramdev Baba, the spiritual guru Sri Sri Ravi Shankar of the Art of Living fame and several other prominent personalities. But the strength of the movement does not

Jan Lokpal Bill

Written by Kavita Pathak

Friday, 26 August 2011 03:28

do have to see the events organized by volunteers of this movement all across the world.

[For more information on this movement, please visit the website \[http://www.janlokpal.org\]\(#\)](#)